EIGHT HOTELS BURNED NEW PARTY LAUNCHED

Fierce Fire Sweeps the Beach at Atlantic City.

THE LOSS IS $2,000,000

High Wind Forced the Flames and Firemen Were Unable to Check.

Several Arrests Made for Looting During Fire.

Atlantic City, April 3.—Eight hotels were either partially or entirely destroyed by fire which broke out on the ocean front this morning. The hotels destroyed were the Windsor, Berkeley, Stratford, Stickney, Luray, Tarleton, Everard and Holland and Youngs Pier.

Loss roughly estimated at $2,000,000. There is a rumor that six lives were lost but this unconfirmed.

Shortly after 1:30 p. m. assistance began to arrive by special train from Camden, 56 miles distant. The wind from the west had increased somewhat blowing the flames eastward with greater fierceness. Youngs pier and Marine Ball room pier were entirely destroyed and the interior portion of the structure was torn down to save adjacent property.

As the fire spread along the beach it burned the board walk and this placed the firemen at disadvantages as they were compelled to retreat to the beach. In some instances the fire companies were unable to get their hose off the board walk and it was destroyed.

Firemen from Philadelphia and Camden pumped water direct from the ocean to flames wherever this was practical.

Luray hotel had a great number of guests, and as this was one of the first places attacked by the flames, there were many scenes of excitement as the guests made hasty exit. Fashionably dressed women helped to carry trunks and valises out. At 2:20 p. m. the fire was under control, firemen having checked it at New York avenue.

The estimated loss is $2,000,000. Several negroes were arrested for looting.

STEYN NOT WILLING.

It Is Believed He Will Not Listen to Any Cession of War.

Pretoria, April 3.—Communications have passed between President Steyn and the Transvaal mission at Kronstad, but nothing is yet known of the result. A majority of the military men and civilians here expect more from continual pressure of troops than from the present negotiations. It is pointed out that once before when hard pressed, Transvaalers showed a desire for peace, but this was promptly overridden by President Steyn. Nothing in the present situation, so far as known, indicates President Steyn less irreconcilable than previously. Indeed, known facts seem to point to a greater determination to continue the struggle.

British Becoming More Strict.

Durban, Natal, April 3.—General traffic is closed throughout the whole country north of Tugela river. The region is stoutly protected by lines of block houses extending from Ladysmith. Permits are required to enable people to proceed beyond Colenso. Town guards at Ladysmith, Dundee and Newcastle, are under arms and have been recruited to their full strength.

DeWet Influencing Steyn.

Kronstad, April 3.—Transvaal delegates still here believed Gen. DeWet is influencing President Steyn not to meet Acting President Schalkburger.

Oleomargarine Debate.

Washington, April 3.—In presenting petitions in the senate against the passage of the oleomargarine bill, Mr. Kean of New Jersey laid before the senate a sample of oleomargarine. Chairman Frye said the sample of oleomargarine would be laid on the table.

After conclusion of routine business debate was resumed on the oleomargarine bill. Mr. Rawlins of Utah maintained congress had no authority to regulate police powers within the states.

Mullah Marching on Cabul.

Allahabad, British India, April 3.—Hudda Mullah, the fanatic who has in the past endeavored to embroil Great Britain and Afghanistan, has started for Cabul, capitol of Afghanistan, with 5000 armed followers. It is feared his arrival at Cabul will cause disturbances as the widow of the late ameer is opposed to him.

Incendiary Fire at Waco.

Waco, Tex., April 3.—Two weeks ago Strother's home school, an old institution, was destroyed by incendiary fire. The school was transferred to the Second Baptist church. Early this morning the church was burned.

TEXAS REPRESENTED

Milton Park Is Elected Permanent Chairman—The Platform Is About the Same as the Populists Adopted at Kansas City.

Louisville, April 3.—The second day's session of the national Allied Party's convention was called to order by Temporary Chairman Felter.

Resolutions of regret at death of ex-Governor Altgeld and Ignatius Donnelly were adopted.

Delegate Walter of Indianapolis offered a resolution condemning Third Assistant Postmaster General Madden for alleged discrimination against reform papers. This was sidetracked with the understanding it would be brought up later.

The report of the committee on credentials showed about 250 delegates present, representing the following states: Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Kansas, Missouri, Michigan, Maine, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Hampshire, New York, Oklahoma, Ohio, South Dakota, Tennessee, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania.

A motion was passed limiting all speeches to three minutes and the convention then organized on permanent basis, Milton Park of Texas being selected chairman defeating S. A. Wright of Springfield, Mo., J. V. L. Pierson of New Jersey was chosen secretary. Mills Williams of Missouri and L. B. Shire of Kentucky assistant secretaries, and A. H. Stapler of Georgia sergeant at arms.

A call for the platform committee's report brought Col. Felter of Illinois to his feet with the demand that it be announced what national organizations were empowered to enter into the alliance. His motion was not considered by the convention, however.

The report of the platform committee was then read by James W. Farris of Illinois.

The report practically sustained the platform adopted by Missouri People's Party convention at Kansas City last September, and made demand for the initiative and referendum. The chief point of issue holding that if this point could be carried the remainder of the principles desired would follow as a matter of course.

The platform favors public ownership of all public utilities; demands that land, including all natural resources, heritage of people shall not be monopolized for speculative purposes and alien ownership be prohibited; that all lands now held by railroads and other corporations in excess of their needs or by aliens shall be reclaimed and held for actual settlers only; that money shall be based upon the entire wealth of the people of the nation and not redeemable in any specific commodity, but shall be full legal tender for all debts, private and public to be used by the government only and without intervention of individuals and corporations in sufficient quantity to meet the requirements of commerce; that taxation be just and natural; that the president, vice president, federal judges and senators, be elected by people. That a cabinet office of the department of labor and equitable arbitration be established; that postal savings bank be established and that such constitutional amendments be passed as may put the above laws in effect.

Appeal to Change Rate.

Manila, April 3.—At a meeting of the chamber of commerce, at which all the members were present, it was decided to send a cablegram to President Roosevelt urging congress to take immediate action concerning the currency question here, which, owing to the present depreciation of silver and the ratio of exchange of $2.27 Mexican for one dollar gold, fixed by the United States Philippine commission for the ensuing quarter, has caused an immense loss of business.

The Walter Courtmartial

Manila, April 3.—At Wednesday's session of the trial by courtmartial of Major Littleton Waller of the Marine corps, on the charge of killing natives of the island of Samar without trial, Private McGee of the Marine corps testified that twelve men were shot, eleven on one day and one the next day.

When called upon to clear up certain points of his testimony, McGee refused to answer on the ground that it might incriminate him.

Fire Damp Kills Men.

London, April 3.—Six men were killed as a result of the explosion fire damp Wednesday night in the colliery at Wigan, Lancashire. Number men entombed at Dunfermline, Scotland, owing to a similar accident.

Soldier Hanged at Manila.

Manila, April 3.—Private Healy, of the Twenty-seventh infantry, was hanged here for the murder of Sergeant Moreland in April, 1901.

BRAIN-FOOD NONSENSE.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not not nourish a particular part of the body but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Caldwell has knocked out the town cow by a majority of fourteen votes.

The federal courts are entirely too free with the word "unconstitutional."

Senator Jones will now have plenty of time to look after his round bale interests.

The third court of appeals has handed down a decision which knocks out the Texas anti-trust laws on the ground that they are unconstitutional.

A new third party has been formed at Louisville which is supposed to combine all the elements that are opposed to the democrats and republicans. If new parties could get rid of the name "third party" they might have better luck.

The newspaper women of Boston have decided to affiliate with negro club women. There are nine states between Texas and Massachusetts, and yet the distance is insignificant compared with other differences between the people of the two states.

In the Senate Bailey and Depew Oppose Each Other in Discussing the Oleomargarine Bill—Three Army Officers Promoted.

Washington, April 3.—The house Wednesday passed the sundry civil appropriation bill. This is the eighth of the regular annual supply bill which has passed at this session. Only a few unimportant amendments were attached to it.

The house then resumed consideration of the senate bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service, which was interrupted when the sundry civil bill was taken up and several speeches made on the measure.

Discussion of the oleomargarine bill in the senate was enlivened by two

His argument was brilliant and at times eloquent and attracted the careful attention of senators on both sides of the chamber and of the occupants of the crowded galleries. Mr. Depew matched his wit with that of Mr. Bailey on the subject of the American girl and the sallies of the two senators were greeted with shouts of laughter, both on the floor and in the galleries. The Texan's keen reference to the marriage of Mr. Depew was most happily fenced by the New York senator in his reference to the love and admiration excited in woman by "the youth and beauty" of Mr. Bailey.

FUNSTON ON FILIPINO.

He Tells of Alleged Atrocities and That He Hanged Some Himself.

San Francisco, April 3.—General Fred Funston was guest of honor at the banquet given Wednesday night by the Ohio society. In response to toast he said in part:

"After the first three or four months fighting the Filipinos forsook all civilized methods of fighting and began guerrilla warfare of a sort unparalleled in history. They killed directly or by torture nearly 4000 of their own countrymen during the years 1900 and 1901, because they would not contribute money to the support of the insurgent cause.

"I know of nearly 400 cases in my own district in which natives were buried alive and many of these were women and children. They committed inconceivable atrocities on American soldiers who fell into their hands. I had pleasure of capturing and hanging some fiends guilty of this.

"Officers in the insurgent army ordered the assassination of each other in order to hold their places. Personally, I owe a good deal to Aguinaldo, but he told me he had General Luns killed for no other reason than he was coming to the front too fast.

"Filipinos are absolutely incapable of self-government to-day and I do not think the next generation of race will be."

Caldwell has knocked out the town cow by a majority of fourteen votes.

The federal courts are entirely too free with the word "unconstitutional."

Senator Jones will now have plenty of time to look after his round bale interests.

The third court of appeals has handed down a decision which knocks out the Texas anti-trust laws on the ground that they are unconstitutional.

A new third party has been formed at Louisville which is supposed to combine all the elements that are opposed to the democrats and republicans. If new parties could get rid of the name "third party" they might have better luck.

The newspaper women of Boston have decided to affiliate with negro club women. There are nine states between Texas and Massachusetts, and yet the distance is insignificant compared with other differences between the people of the two states.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

The House Passes Civil Sundry Appropriation Bill.

THE CHANGE SLIGHT

In the Senate Bailey and Depew Oppose Each Other in Discussing the Oleomargarine Bill—Three Army Officers Promoted.

Washington, April 3.—The house Wednesday passed the sundry civil appropriation bill. This is the eighth of the regular annual supply bill which has passed at this session. Only a few unimportant amendments were attached to it.

The house then resumed consideration of the senate bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service, which was interrupted when the sundry civil bill was taken up and several speeches made on the measure.

Discussion of the oleomargarine bill in the senate was enlivened by two or three bright colloquies between senators. Mr. Bailey of Texas concluded his speech in opposition to the measure. His argument was brilliant and at times eloquent and attracted the careful attention of senators on both sides of the chamber and of the occupants of the crowded galleries. He was followed by Mr. Depew of New York

In a bright and witty speech in support of the measure. Mr. Depew matched his wit with that of Mr. Bailey on the subject of the American girl and the sallies of the two senators were greeted with shouts of laughter, both on the floor and in the galleries. The Texan's keen reference to the marriage of Mr. Depew was most happily fenced by the New York senator in his reference to the love and admiration excited in woman by "the youth and beauty" of Mr. Bailey.

The following bills were passed: Authorizing the White River Railway company to construct a bridge across the White river in Arkansas. Authorizing the appointment of John Russell Bartlett as a rear admiral on the retired list of the navy. To extend the time for presentation of claims to reimburse the governors of states and territories for expenses in the war with Spain to January 1, 1903, and seventy-one private pension incurred by them in aiding the United States to raise and organize an army bills.

ing here on the Great... due last Friday, tell of being... bound for four days and five... on the prairies of North Dakota, in the midst of the worst blizzard the north-west has seen in many years, with only food enough for two frugal meals a day, and with a small amount of fuel. The ladies had to wrap themselves in blankets and the men to wear their overcoats day and night to keep from freezing. The train was completely lost to the world.

Late Thursday afternoon it picked its way out of Williston in the hope of being able to reach Minot, four miles away, before night. Almost midway, at a little stopping place called Ray, where there is only a siding, a water tank and a coal shed, the train stalled. The engineer thought he could run the engine back to Williston and get aid, and taking the conductor with him, started on the return. The lone engine was stuck in a drift in a cut a short distance out of town and had to be abandoned. This left the train of eight coaches and about 250 passengers alone on the siding and with all communication cut off. Then started the long siege, during which the cold had to be borne and hunger stifled. There was much suffering.

There was an incident riot on the first day. The second-class passengers insisted that they must have as much or more food than the others, and as they were in larger numbers and had more ravenous appetites, it was difficult to confine them to their quota. Many were not willing, as the first-class passengers insisted, that the women and children should be fed and taken care of, but after some argument they were prevailed upon to yield.

Monday evening Prof. Colgrave of the University of Washington, who was en route east on a vacation trip, and who had been despondent and morose, attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. There was a physician on the train, but he had no facilities for performing the necessary operation, and it was absolutely necessary to get into communication with one of the neighboring towns. In their desperation the passengers went through the train chests, and in the conductor's box found a telegraph instrument. A young man, an electrician, on the train, faced the blizzard and tapped one of the wires and attached the instrument. He knew a little about telegraphy, and notified the operators at both Minot and Williston of what had occurred. From each place a snow plow was started in front of an engine, bearing a surgeon. The one from Minot, after a hard night's work, reached the siding early the following morning, and the wounded man was removed on the first train to St. Paul, where he was cared for at the city hospital. The almost famished passengers, who had suffered from the cold and exposure, were given food and warm berths in the first train pushed through the drifts.

ing here on the Great... due last Friday, tell of being bound for four days and five nights on the prairies of North Dakota, in the midst of the worst blizzard the north-west has seen in many years, with only food enough for two frugal meals a day, and with a small amount of fuel. The ladies had to wrap themselves in blankets and the men to wear their overcoats day and night to keep from freezing. The train was completely lost to the world.

Late Thursday afternoon it picked its way out of Williston in the hope of being able to reach Minot, four miles away, before night. Almost midway, at a little stopping place called Ray, where there is only a siding, a water tank and a coal shed, the train stalled. The engineer thought he could run the engine back to Williston and get aid, and taking the conductor with him, started on the return. The lone engine was stuck in a drift in a cut a short distance out of town and had to be abandoned. This left the train of eight coaches and about 250 passengers alone on the siding and with all communication cut off. Then started the long siege, during which the cold had to be borne and hunger stifled. There was much suffering.

There was an incipient riot on the first day. The second-class passengers insisted that they must have as much or more food than the others, and as they were in larger numbers and had more ravenous appetites, it was difficult to confine them to their quota. Many were not willing, as the first-class passengers insisted, that the women and children should be fed and taken care of, but after some argument they were prevailed upon to yield.

Monday evening Prof. Colgrave of the University of Washington, who was en route east on a vacation trip, and who had been despondent and morose, attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. There was a physician on the train, but he had no facilities for performing the necessary operation, and it was absolutely necessary to get into communication with one of the neighboring towns. In their desperation the passengers went through the train chests, and in the conductor's box found a telegraph instrument. A young man, an electrician, on the train, faced the blizzard and tapped one of the wires and attached the instrument. He knew a little about telegraphy, and notified the operators at both Minot and Williston of what had occurred. From each place a snow plow was started in front of an engine, bearing a surgeon. The one from Minot, after a hard night's work, reached the siding early the following morning, and the wounded man was removed on the first train to St. Paul, where he was cared for at the city hospital. The almost famished passengers, who had suffered from the cold and exposure, were given food and warm berths in the first train pushed through the drifts.

BIG RACKET

An article bearing the name of Prof. Mally, to which I desire to reply as far as relates to the questions of fact.

The particular statement which seems to have aroused Mr. Robinson is one which has been credited to me by the Paris, Texas, News and is as follows: "He was asked if quails were destructive to insects and answered in the affirmative. They are more destructive than any other of the feathered tribe." So far as the Texas fauna in which the farmer is concerned, this statement is substantially correct, though the exact statement which I made was that the quail is one of the farmers' best friends and as destructive of insect life as any of the feathered tribe we have on our Texas farms. It should be remembered that even during the season when the quail feeds but little, if any, upon insects, its food habits are confined mostly to injurious weed seeds and are the farmers' friend from that standpoint at that time of the year. Mr. Robinson seems to be averse to accepting my statements as authoritative. Hence owing to the fact that my efforts are always made in the interest of science or industrial education, I have gotten together a few statements from the best authorities in America in order that my critic may be free to recede from his position without the item of a personal prejudice.

In a letter to me dated March 19, 1902, Dr. S. A. Forbes, director of the Illinois State Laboratory of Natural History, writes as follows in reference to the quail. "Its insectivorous character is, however, well established, and I have found its crop crammed full of chinch bugs." The farmers of the grain belt who have had experience with this chinch bug pest of their grain crops will well appreciate the help the friendly quail may be to them during the breeding and nesting period. On the same date I have a letter from Dr. C. Hart Merriam, chief of the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, in which he writes as follows: "In reply to your letter of 17th of March, I would state that the quail (Colinus virginianus and subspecies) is both gaminivorous and insectivorous. The few stomachs and crops that have been examined by sportsmen have been taken during the hunting season when the bulk of the food consists of vegetable matter; this has probably given foundation for the belief that insects are never eaten. During the breeding season and throughout the summer however, enormous quantities of insects are destroyed; they include such pests as the red legged locust, Rocky mountain locust, various cutworms, army worm, chinch bugs, May beetles, twelve spotted cucumber beetle and the cotton boll weevil. The bird, during the colder half of the year, feeds largely upon the seeds of weeds. It is one of the most useful species, and should receive more stringent protection. This might be very well begun by shortening the hunting season." In addition the March 15th issue of the Farm and Ranch quotes editorially on page 8 from Prof. Sylvester D. Judd, also of the United States biological survey, as follows: "Quail and prairie chickens destroy such dreaded pests as cut worms, army worms, twelve spotted cucumber beetles, chinch bugs and Rocky mountain locusts. Our gallinaceous birds, such as grouse, quail, pheasants, etc. are not exclusively vegetarian as is popularly believed, but are mixed feeders and probably nourish their newly hatched chicks principally on insects."

Biological researches long ago established the fact that the food of birds varies much with season and environments. During the breeding season and the period of rearing their young the quail, as well as many other kinds of birds, feed extensively upon insects. Later on there are periods during which it would be rare or unexpected to find insects in their crops. All these facts are verified and testified to by the eminent authorities above quoted. Hence it is evident and it so appears from Mr. Robinson's article that his observations have been only during the hunting season. He explicitly states that he observed feeding habits for the sole purpose of knowing when and where to hunt them most successfully. He boasts of having done this for the past thirty years and that he ought to have learned something during so long a time. In this I fully agree with him and regret that he has yet so much to learn about the food habits even of the quail which he has studied for more than a quarter of a century. The ten thousand victims which merciless butchery has taken place. He admits that he believes in the enforcement of the game laws only in the hope that there may be more birds to kill the next season. He seems to have no ambition that these friends of the farmer should be protected in order that there might be more help in the fight against insect depredations. For this reason I think the farmers of which he complains are thoroughly justified in posting their premises and thereby prohibiting worse than useless slaughter. That the birds are killed only during the hunting season when they are largely gaminivorous is no argument, in view of the fact that they are dead during the breeding and nesting season later when they are insectivorous. Above have been given the statements of the best authorities in America on the question at issue and I shall refrain from expressing my own opinions and observations, except to say, as I have heretofore, that my study and experiences are fully corroborated by these eminent authorities. I have no doubt but that the people, for whom Mr. Robinson seems so solicitous, will be prepared to decide whose leadership they will follow. It seems a pity that from time to time the half-cocked statements or articles of quacks are able to get into the public prints to mislead the unsuspecting or the uninformed.

A smart trick often resorted to by unscrupulous hunters is to offer a reward for persons finding insects in the crops of birds, after their insect feeding period is passed. They are successful in hoodwinking and misleading only those who are equally as ignorant as the hunter is selfish and deceitful. Many innocent and well meaning farmers have no positive knowledge on such matters and are only too often victims of glib-tongued hunters. I have no prejudice for honest sport or sportsmen, but have a contempt for those who, either through ignorance or base selfishness, would deprive any human being of a friend or helper.

Part II. In the boll weevil portion of his article, Mr. Robinson may not be more ignorant but is less fair. No fact or condition is better known among planters than that some farms or plantations may be badly infested with boll weevil early in the season and others near by have not a single weevil for some time later. This was especially true in the early portion of last season. Later on the pest became wide spread and very few fields could be found in which the weevils were not plentiful. The spread, however, had not taken place until after those fields which at first were uninfested had set a fair crop of bolls. Those planters who had the first weevils were the first to begin the fight, while their less thrifty neighbors did nothing. If his afflicted neighbor made a careful, accurate, persistent and successful fight, he argued that there would be no need that he too make an intelligent campaign. As a matter of fact the success of the scattering few who made relentless war on the boll weevil not only made a profitable crop for themselves but largely aided their less worthy neighbors to make theirs, through having prevented or controlled the early spread of the pest and by destroying the pest in large numbers in the centers where it at first seemed numerous. Now comes Mr. Robinson, saying in effect, that he who made no fight was wise, because he stood by and profited by his industrious neighbors' energy and efforts. The truth is, that the fact the do-nothing farmer made a crop, is the strongest evidence of the success of the weevil fight made by his fellow grower.

Mr. Robinson also stretches the truth considerably when he says that I should have stated in an address at Bryan last year, that unless the recommendations advised be adopted and applied, there wouldn't be a bloom after July. This charge is perfectly absurd for the reason that at the time of my address at Bryan it was already too late to practice some of the most important portions of the system advised. At the Bryan meeting I explained the life history of the boll weevil, and in that connection discussed its extreme prolificness. This was supplemented by the tables from my official report showing that at the normal rate of breeding and increase, a pair of boll weevils starting the breeding season on an acre of cotton the first of April, with no hindrances to their breeding or fatality to their progeny, would multiply so rapidly that after July the plants on an acre of cotton would not be able to produce squares as fast as the weevils would increase, and that not only would all the squares become infested but also many of the small SALE was celebrated generally through the republic. It is the thirty-fifth anniversary of the triumph of Mexico over the close of the Mexican Revolution. In the vicinity where the pest. The recited facts were given as an argument favoring, first, the planting of early fruiting and maturing kinds of cotton. Secondly, the value of trap rows for colonizing the weevils on a limited amount of cotton and making a concentrated fight against the pest early in the season before it had a chance to spread. It will be evident therefore that my statements have been shamefully perverted.

To further show the absolute injustice of Mr. Robinson's statement that these who made no fight made as much cotton as those who did, it is only necessary to explain that many farmers delayed in making any effort or fight until very late in the season, so late in fact that in many instances I advised them to save their time and money. That it was simply throwing it away to start so late a campaign. Of course those who made a late start, and there were a great many, got no tangible results or benefits. In view of what has been said of their late start, if these results are to be compared with those who made no fight at all, the results should appear the same, inasmuch as neither hurt the weevil any, so far as the volume of the crop was concerned. On this basis, therefore, the statement is true enough, but all the facts should accompany it. Reports are even yet coming into this office from those who made a successful fight last year and wanting to know if any changes of advantage are to be made this year. From some of these reports I am pleased to find that many have the fight half won by their winter and spring campaign already put into operation. This is one of those propositions where, if it has been clearly demonstrated that success has positively followed a careful, accurate, persistent application of the system advised, the so-called failures constitute no contrary argument. Rightly understood, they argue the failure of the individual in his application of the system. If any have failed, it argues that they should study, try again, and learn how to succeed. The Formation of an Allied Party Taking More D-d-shape.

Louisville, April 3.—The movement for the formation of an allied party comprising elements of all parties opposed to the Republicans and Democrats, and as the call for the meeting stated, "a union of reform forces against plutocracy," took definite shape Wednesday afternoon when a convention, attended by about 200 delegates representing eight states and as many different parties, was called to order at Liederkranz hall in this city. The first's days work was of a preliminary nature, a temporary organization being effected and committees appointed to prepare for the permanent organization. The convention adjourned at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon to meet again to-day.

in the vicinity where merciless butchery has taken place. He admits that he believes in the enforcement of the game laws only in the hope that there may be more birds to kill the next season. He seems to have no ambition that these friends of the farmer should be protected in order that there might be more helpers in the fight against insect depredations. For this reason I think the farmers of which he complains are thoroughly justified in posting their premises and thereby prohibiting worse than useless slaughter. That the birds are killed only during the hunting season when they are largely gaminivorous is no argument, in view of the fact that they are dead during the breeding and nesting season later when they are insectivorous. Above have been given the statements of the best authorities in America on the question at issue and I shall refrain from expressing my own opinions and observations, except to say, as I have heretofore, that my study and experiences are fully corroborated by these eminent authorities. I have no doubt but that the people, for whom Mr. Robinson seems so solicitous, will be prepared to decide whose leadership they will follow. It seems a pity that from time to time the half-cocked statements or articles of quacks are able to get into the public prints to mislead the unsuspecting or the uninformed.

A smart trick often resorted to by unscrupulous hunters is to offer a reward for persons finding insects in the crops of birds, after their insect feeding period is passed. They are successful in hoodwinking and misleading only those who are equally as ignorant as the hunter is selfish and deceitful. Many innocent and well meaning farmers have no positive knowledge on such matters and are only too often victims of glib-tongued hunters. I have no prejudice for honest sport or sportsmen, but have a contempt for those who, either through ignorance or base selfishness, would deprive any human being of a friend or helper.

Part II. In the boll weevil portion of his article, Mr. Robinson may not be more ignorant but is less fair. No fact or condition is better known among planters than that some farms or plantations may be badly infested with boll weevil early in the season and others near by have not a single weevil for some time later. This was especially true in the early portion of last season. Later on the pest became wide spread and very few fields could be found in which the weevils were not plentiful. The spread, however, had not taken place until after those fields which at first were uninfested had set a fair crop of bolls. Those planters who had the first weevils were the first to begin the fight, while their less thrifty neighbors did nothing. If his afflicted neighbor made a careful, accurate, persistent and successful fight, he argued that there would be no need that he too make an intelligent campaign. As a matter of fact the success of the scattering few who made relentless war on the boll weevil not only made a profitable crop for themselves but largely aided their less worthy neighbors to make theirs, through having prevented or controlled the early spread of the pest and by destroying the pest in large numbers in the centers where it at first seemed numerous. Now comes Mr. Robinson, saying in effect, that he who made no fight was wise, because he stood by and profited by his industrious neighbors' energy and efforts. The truth is, that the fact the do-nothing farmer made a crop, is the strongest evidence of the success of the weevil fight made by his fellow grower.

Mr. Robinson also stretches the truth considerably when he says that I should have stated in an address at Bryan last year, that unless the recommendations advising be adopted and applied, there wouldn't be a bloom after July. This charge is perfectly absurd for the reason that at the time of my address at Bryan it was already too late to practice some of the most important portions of the system advised. At the Bryan meeting I explained the life history of the boll weevil, and in that connection discussed its extreme prolificness. This was supplemented by the tables from my official report showing that at the normal rate of breeding and increase, a pair of boll weevils starting the breeding season on an acre of cotton the first of April, with no hindrances to their breeding or fatality to their progeny, would multiply so rapidly that after July the plants on an acre of cotton would not be able to produce squares as fast as the weevils would increase, and that not only would all the squares become infested but also many of the small generally through the republic. It is the thirty-fifth anniversary of the triumph of Mexico over the colossus of the empire. The celebration was done to check the development of the pest. The recited facts were given as an argument favoring, first; the planting of early fruiting and maturing kinds of cotton. Second; the value of trap rows for colonizing the weevils on a limited amount of cotton and making a concentrated fight against the pest early in the season before it had a chance to spread. It will be evident therefore that my statements have been shamefully perverted.

To further show the absolute injustice of Mr. Robinson's statement that those who made no fight made as much cotton as those who did, it is only necessary to explain that many farmers delayed in making any effort or fight until very late in the season, so late in fact that in many instances I advised them to save their time and money. That it was simply throwing it away to start so late a campaign. Of course those who made a late start, and there were a great many, got no tangible results or benefits. In view of what has been said of their late start, if these results are to be compared with those who made no fight at all, the results should appear the same, inasmuch as neither hurt the weevil any, so far as the volume of the crop was concerned. On this basis, therefore, the statement is true enough, but all the facts should accompany it. Reports are even yet coming into this office from those who made a successful fight last year and wanting to know if any changes of advantage are to be made this year. From some of these reports I am pleased to find that many have the fight half won by their winter and spring campaign already put into operation. This is one of those propositions where, if it has been clearly demonstrated that success has positively followed a careful, accurate, persistent application of the system advised, the so-called failures constitute no contrary argument. Rightly understood, they argue the failure of the individual in his application of the system. If any have failed, it argues that they should study, try again, and learn how to succeed.
